TRAILER ICING Case Farms Ice Plant

Why Ice?

- Keeps trees cold & fresh
- Reefer trailers dry out trees and the needles fall off
- Dry vans need more ice than reefers, some trailers temperatures reach over 100° F

How Much Ice?

- Most growers use 2,000lbs. per load
- Some dry vans and container shippers have used 3,000lbs. per load

Who Ices?

- Almost all larger growers ice, they want the freshest trees
- One large grower said 'he has never had a rejection on iced loads but several rejections on un-iced loads'
- Chain store receivers like loads that have visible ice on top of the load

Note:

We ice the whole load from front to rear; not just the rear of the trailer. Receivers want the whole load iced. We heard complaints from some of the chain stores in southern CA that their loads were not iced or were improperly iced.

Wes Wasson & Karen Temen

Bring Forestry Expertise, Commitment to Continued Learning and Christmas Tree Growing hile Wes Wasson and his wife Karen Temen are relatively new to Christmas tree growing, their shared backgrounds as professional foresters helped inspire their transition into becoming full-time Christmas tree growers.

"We both worked for industrial forest landowners," said Wes. "She worked in reforestation, helicopter logging, inventory and sold seedlings for the nursery, and I started in inventory before moving over to reforestation and ended my career selling herbicides to forest owners and Christmas tree growers."

That experience was put to good use when the couple purchased a four-acre piece of property in Shelton, Washington in 2006 and decided to plant a few acres of Christmas trees. A couple years later, Wes and Karen expanded their operation in a big way, purchasing a 75-acre parcel of land in Mossyrock, Washington with an existing Christmas tree operation.

"One of my close friends, John Tillman, mentored me in how to grow Christmas trees," said Wes of the long-time Pacific Northwest Christmas Tree Association (PNWCTA) member. "We were looking for land to plant more trees and John was doing an appraisal of a Christmas tree farm. He called me and said that the owner was motivated to sell, so we bought those 75 acres. We jumped in with both feet!"

Wes was between jobs at the time, giving him ample time to learn about growing Christmas trees while getting his new operation going. Today, Snookum View Nobles has two full-time employees plus Wes and Karen, who retired in 2023 and 2022, and now work full time on the farm.

While their experience as foresters has been helpful, Wes says there was still a lot to learn when it came to growing Christmas trees for the farm's wholesale operation.

"I learned a lot of it from John," said Wes. "I was already familiar with the products I was using, so I have an experience there. Growing trees wasn't hard for us either because we're both foresters. But on the culturing, John is way ahead of me, and learning things like the culturing and how to prep the land is very different than working in forestry."

A big proponent of growing his connections within the industry, Wes quickly renewed his membership in the PNWCTA, this time as a grower member instead of an industrial member, and in 2025 became president of the PNWCTA board of directors.

When asked what he enjoys the most about the Christmas tree industry, Wes said, "The other people in it. I find it very rewarding to spend time with other growers. And I suppose I never got over the childhood need for playing in the dirt!"

Wes has also appreciated the opportunity to continue learning from other growers through the association.

"You learn a lot at association events, and it helps to develop relationships with the other growers," said Wes. "It's not just the information that you get at events. You might take that information and discuss it with two or three other members and figure out how it might be implemented on our farms. It's the relationships that are key!"

While the collaborative learning environment is a big draw for Wes, he doesn't shy away from a little competition amongst his fellow members and regularly brings his trees to the PNWCTA's annual Tree Fair & Trade Show to compete in various tree categories. While he has won a handful of first, second, and third place prizes over the years, Wes was awarded the prestigious Grand Champion award in 2024 for his Noble fir.

"I've been trying to win that for at least 10 years of bringing trees to the association tree contest," said Wes. "And Tillman doesn't bring trees anymore, so I finally had the opportunity to win!"

While the awards for each tree category are voted on by all Tree Fair attendees, the Grand Champion is selected by three industry experts selected by the PNWCTA board of directors.

With two first place wins, a secondplace award, and a Grand Champion award from 2024, Wes has set a high bar for his trees in 2025!

Interested in entering your trees in the 2025 PNWCTA Tree Fair competition? Save the date for our Annual Christmas Tree and Farm Showcase on August 14, 2025! Learn more at: pnwcta.org/ christmas-tree-farm-showcase. Future Tree Fair winners will be featured in PNWCTA's annual Buy/Sell magazine.

NORDMANN FIR

GRAND FIR

At Noble Mountain Tree Farm, we know your success is directly tied to the quality, marketability, keepability, and on-time delivery of trees. For over 45 years our reputation has been to provide our customers with those qualities, services and more.

Noble Mountain is built around a top quality team of professional tree growers whose specialized skills and years of experience combine to give you big company expertise and small company attention.

Superior, Consistent Quality: Noble Mountain has years of experience and research in growing, cultivating, harvesting, and deliverying the freshest trees possible. We are one of the largest producers of Noble Fir Christmas trees in the nation.

High Marketability: We anticipate market trends. For example, feedback from customers allows us to grow the "style" of tree necessary to meet changing consumer preferences.

Keepability: Our ongoing research has given us a unique insight into the best methods for maximizing keepability and ensuring that our trees hold up under sever selling conditions.

On-Time Delivery: More than 45 years of helicopter harvesting experience and mixed loading capabilities give you the fastest turnaround time available

Accurate Sales Projections: We are the industry leader in computerized sales tracking. What's the selling history of a particular region? What are the projected sales for that area? When do trees need to be delivered in anticipation of customer buying trends? Current, accurate answers to those questions and many others can be found in the extensive database we've made available to our customers.

We are a family owned and operated business. As fourth generation farmers, we are committed to employing best management practices and operating our business with integrity, ingenuity, energy, and passion.

As a result of growing our own seedlings and transplants, as well as planting, culturing, maintaining, and harvesting each tree, we are able to provide presidential quality trees, designer wreaths & greens, and unparalleled customer service.
